

Play2Connect

Bringing families together through gaming

Fall 2013

WANT TO GET RESEARCH EXPERIENCE AND COURSE CREDIT?

The Play2Connect project is looking for undergraduate OR master's students who are interested in understanding the research process and developing their research skills in out-of-school settings. The focus of the research experience will be on investigating how families learn together at home, in museums, and other after school settings using digital media technologies, in particular video games. In addition to gaining research experience, students will gain insight into how learning takes place beyond the classroom, and how our understanding of such informal learning is inspiring innovative activities in school.

You will be working with Professors Elisabeth Hayes and Sinem Siyahhan in the Center for Games & Impact, Mary Lou Fulton Teachers College on a research project that is part of a national study of family media engagement.

Students can receive course credit in Education (TEL 494).

Who is eligible to participate?

Students who...

- ✓ Are Masters or Undergraduates (2nd year or beyond)
- ✓ Have transportation (Gas will be compensated)
- ✓ Are available to work 3 or more consecutive hours each week (Monday - Sunday)
- ✓ Can make a semester commitment (with the option to continue in Spring 2014)
- ✓ Are professional and responsible
- ✓ Can speak fluent Spanish is a plus but not required

I'm interested! What do I do next?

Limited spots are available! If interested, please contact Professor Sinem Siyahhan sinem.siyahhan@asu.edu ASAP for an application!